

“Today we know with a certainty that segregation is dead. The only question remaining is how costly will be the funeral.”

Strength to Love (1963) [New York: Harper]

“Many white Americans of goodwill have never connected bigotry with economic exploitation. They have deplored prejudice but tolerated or ignored economic injustice. But the Negro knows that these two evils have a malignant kinship.”

The Words of Martin Luther King, Jr.
(1983)